By ROSS MUNRO
WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 3.—(CP)—Canadian infantry hammered out new gains in the Antwerp sector today advancing six miles northwest of the city and clearing nearly all the dock area of the great port.

Polish armored units of the Canadian army operating north of the Turnhout canal meanwhile crossed the Netherlands border and pushed two miles into Holland.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 3.—(CP)—Michael F. The former Ontario Liberal premier also said in an interview that next Tuesday he will attend his first caucus of Liberal members of the legislature since the provincial election of August, 1943.

The statement was made in reply to a request from the Liberal Association of Elgin that Mr. Hepburn consider nomination for the party in the Federal riding.

Nazis Quitting Greek Islands

Report Allies Land on Crete
LONDON, Oct. 3.—(CP)—Strong Allied forces have landed on the northwest part of Crete, the Morocco radio asserted today. The brief announcement gave no details.

The German garrison at Crete, however, appeared in a hopeless position in view of the Allied occupation of the island of Kythera, between Crete and the mainland of Greece.

The Germans have been reported to be withdrawing their forces from islands ringing the southern tip of Greece, but there have been no indications that they had evacuated Crete—symbol of one of the Germans' greatest triumphs in this war.

PREVIOUSLY BLOCKADED
Allied headquarters in Rome recently announced that Crete had been blockaded by Allied naval forces and reported continuing air attacks on Nazi installations on the island.

Boldly and unopposed in waters where many of her sister warships fought a losing battle with the German air force more than three years ago, the British cruiser Black Prince shelled the island.

American First Army Pierces Defences North of Aachen

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Oct. 3.—(BUP)—The American 1st Army pierced the Siegfried line north of Aachen today, some 24 hours after the start of a major offensive which had rolled up a total gain of four miles.

"The Siegfried line is definitely breached in the Ubach area," British United Press war correspondent Henry T. Gorrell reported from First Army headquarters in a dispatch filed at 5:30 p.m.

While the Americans were driving forward 10 miles north of Aachen and the British 2nd Army still further widened its Eindhoven-Arnhem corridor in Holland, a strong force of RAF heavy bombers began loosening the German hold on the western Netherlands by smashing a dyke on the island of Walcheren, turning a force of sea water upon heavy enemy guns which have been blocking Allied use of the port of Antwerp.

SMASH DYKE
The area was heavily mined and full of booby traps.

Smashing its initial advance of two miles, the American First Army smashed eastward from Ubach to carry through the Siegfried line and open a gap for a push eastward to the Rhine.

Eighth Army To Standstill

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME, Oct. 3. — (AP) — The British 8th Army's attack on the Adriatic sector was brought to a complete standstill by the flooded Fulicino river behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched, it was announced today.

American infantry captured Monighero, an important road junction 13 miles due south of Bologna, as the Allied 5th Army plowed slowly northward yesterday through the

On the Italian west coast the Brazilian expeditionary force has been slugging steadily forward and took Monte Nona.

SCORE RARE VICTORY

Heavy rains and heavy traffic made many by-passes on the 8th Army front unusable, thus limiting advances in all sectors.

While 8th Army assault forces were compelled to await the receding Fiumicino's flood, New Zealand anti-aircraft gunners on the Adriatic coast achieved one of the war's rarest victories by engaging a light German vessel and sinking it with three shots from a Bofors 40-millimetre gun.

Gen. Alexander's headquarters announced that the total number of prisoners taken by the 8th Army in its current Adriatic offensive had risen to 8,000.

Canada's Race Problem

Premier Duplessis says a good deal less than it sounds like when he declares there is no racial problem in the province of Quebec. For the matter of that there isn't any in Japan, nor in Italy. Absence of a "race" problem may mean nothing more than that the people of a community are overwhelmingly of one stock. There wouldn't be any such problem suggested, despite our diverse population, if Mr. Duplessis and his political friends did not create one—without any assistance of Premier Drew of Ontario and other extremists on the opposite side.

The Ontario premier made a further contribution to the bad cause when he stirred up an Ottawa election by the act of refusing to sing "O Canada" because that so-called national anthem happens to be popular in Quebec. The Canadian Duplessis and the Drews are making a sad havoc of national unity, and of even intolerance, in Canada. Unless and until the common sense of the electors awakens the provokers on both sides there is little prospect that the miserable political feud will not go on, or that any substantial progress toward national solidarity can be achieved.

Getting More Humane

Official Swiss investigators report that the Japanese are treating Canadian—and other Allied prisoners—better than they did some months ago. The Canadians are now housed, the neutral officials say, along with other prisoners in reasonably fit barracks at Hong Kong. The barracks appear to be fairly well equipped with kitchens, wash-rooms, recreational facilities and other requirements.

The men are supplied with adequate clothing, though foot wear is poor. Food is said to be sufficient to maintain health, though rice and other Oriental foods figure largely in the list of staples. The Canadians are allowed to plant gardens and raise chickens, and arrangements have finally been made to forward them Red Cross parcels of food and other necessities. Further, an adequately equipped hospital has been established, staffed with white doctors and nurses, also prisoners.

This is most welcome news of course. Not less welcome is the fact that the treatment of prisoners has improved as Japanese fortunes have ebbed. Tokyo is no longer so long on the verge of reckoning will not come. It can be hoped therefore that deliberate cruelty to prisoners is a thing of the past.

Out of the Caves

The churches were crowded in Britain's "hell fire" corner on Sunday by people thankful as well as jubilant that they were at last free from the four-year bombardment to which they had been subjected by the German big guns on the Cap Gris-Nez. Memorial services were held for 150 men, women and children who had been killed by the guns. The bodies were sent to the Canadians who died in silencing the batteries.

These guns were as elusive as they were powerful. Although they were being pounded that area almost daily for months in an attempt to locate them and put them out of action—without success, it was surprising to learn that the number who were killed in the bombardment was not so great as had been reported. There is no doubt accounted for by the news that the people in the straited corners have been living in caves and deep dugouts.

There is no difficulty understanding the joy with which the private individuals in these hiding places and tackled the job of restoring their homes, gardens, fields and roads. Nor in understanding that they flocked to their churches to give thanks for their deliverance and to join in memorial services for their neighbors who had died and for those who have been killed. These facts serve to show the great yearning which his life extended, much better than to note merely that he was more than 101 years old when he died Sunday morning at Toronto.

Dead; But He Lived

Sir William Mulock was 23 years older than the Dominion of Canada. He was 81 years of age when he entered the first cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1896. These facts serve to show the great yearning which his life extended, much better than to note merely that he was more than 101 years old when he died Sunday morning at Toronto.

It was not alone for his longevity that Sir William enjoyed nation-wide distinction. He has left his mark on the political life, the education and the judicial life of Canada. Only eight years ago he retired from the chief justiceship of Ontario, and was chancellor of the University of Toronto from 1922 to 1932.

But his public activities did not wholly absorb the time and attention of this remarkable man. In his private life he was engaged all the way from farming to sport, including charitable and religious work and art. It could be said of him that he was ever busy. He was a man of many talents. He always kept the forward view. For him the things of today and tomorrow were of constant concern. He was always busy at something. He refused to quit and simply wait for the undertaker.

Sir William used to credit his long life to a sound constitution. But a good deal of the credit should go to the fact that he kept his mind alive and occupied. Many men die before their time because they allow life to degenerate. Not so Sir William. In his lexicon there was no such word as monotony. In the end he slept quietly away—in the dawn of another morning which would have opened him to a new chapter of vitalizing experience. What a life!

"When public opinion realizes that its generals and admirals have failed," General MacArthur says, "the revolution in Japan will be terrific. Therein lies the basis for ultimate hope for the Japanese citizen will cease his almost idolatrous worship of the military and readjust his thoughts along more rational lines." The General, it appears, understands human nature, as well as military tactics.

Another satellite state shows signs of ceasing to be an asset to Hitler and of becoming a liability. Some weeks ago the Fuehrer made it advisable for the Hungarian cabinet and set up one of his own choosing. Now the getup has taken charge of telephones and telegraph communications, while civilians have been ordered to evacuate a large part of the country about which Russian pincer columns are threatening to close, Hungary is up against Austria, and is the last "buffer" state at the south-east corner of the Reich.

As far as it can be seen, the difficulties under the three-power plan come chiefly from the Soviet side. The Soviets are not in a position to make a traditional fear that to "use of a dispute about aggression" the Soviet Union will be a common hand, and that, in the end, the League of Nations will be a world alliance against the Soviet Union. The alliances in this world war should have shown the theory, but they apparently have not.

Former Publisher Is Shot to Death

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Oct. 3. (AP)—Alexander Cordoba, former publisher of the newspaper "Imperial" was shot to death Sunday when he entered the garage beside his home. Freddy Koenigsberger, hardware store owner, was seriously wounded at the same time. Koenigsberger said there were three assailants.

Following the banquet, the construction association president told of a recent telegram he had received from Mr. W. Williams, Dominion timber agent, stating that 50 per cent of the 1944 timber cut in Canada was for home consumption.

"We are still going after the lumber," he said, "the United States is not going to let us have it."

Speaking of his trip to the west coast, the construction official told of seeing B.C. fire on a large scale, but of seeing none of it.

"Problems of material are serious all across the country. The B.C. has a severe shortage of lumber, but it is a more fortunate, having available supplies of native species."

Mr. Nichols outlined activities of the construction association and some of his plans for the post-war period. Of the western tour, he said his purpose was to discuss problems confronting the industry and to exchange ideas. It has been highly successful to date, he said.

Mr. Nichols said the industry has been warned by the government that it will be more than an ordinary labor in the post-war years in putting men to work. In Canada, returning servicemen are being advised for training under appropriate regulations for mechanic jobs in construction.

Warm letters to Clark Kelly, manager of the construction association, for work done at Ottawa was paid by Mr. Nichols. He is president of the National Construction Council, described work of his organization from its beginning in 1918, when it was organized in promoting the National Housing Act and Home Improvement Plan, which the government came into power in 1935, he said.

Premier Ernest Manning Inspects Installations At Air Command Station

During an informal tour on Monday of the Edmonton Station of Northwest Air Command, RCAF, Premier Ernest Manning made a thorough and enthusiastic investigation of installations. Highlight of his tour was his visit to the control tower where he took over the microphone and directed a United States Douglas transport in for a landing.

Arriving at the station at 4 p.m. Mr. Manning was met by Group Captain A. V. Patriarche, AFC, and other command officers.

Officers who showed the premier around were Group Captain D. A. Harding, AFC, commanding officer of the Edmonton station, Sqdn. Ldr. Howard Watson, senior flying control officer, and Sqdn. Ldr. E. A. Kenny, senior administration officer.

The recreation hall with its swimming pool and complete sports equipment impressed Mr. Manning and during his inspection of the barracks he remarked that they appeared to be "much better than during the last war."

Visiting the airman's mess, the premier sampled a dish of prunes and completed his tour of the cook preparations for the evening meal. Not satisfied with a cursory inspection, Mr. Manning investigated all the ice boxes and examined meat hanging in freezing lockers.

Officers showed him the fire department and routine flying rescue work and emergency preparations were explained.

In the airways control office, where flight of all commercial and military planes in the area is controlled, the premier listened to messages being sent and received and heard a recording of conversations between planes and control tower.

Visiting No. 165 squadron, Mr. Manning climbed into a Douglas C-47 and was shown the controls by Group Captain Harding. He talked with the officer commanding the squadron, P. L. W. P. Ferguson.

BACK AT MEAS
An hour and a half after starting his inspection the premier was back in the officers' mess and spent another hour chatting with officers about their work.

Before leaving the station, Mr. Manning visited the RCAF hospital where he visited all the patients and inspected the operating room and other facilities.

These Women!

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

TURPENTINE AND COUGH I am unable to get turpentine in capsules (capsules H. L. A.) or in tablet form, but only in liquid form called Elixir of turpentine hydrate. The druggist said only three drops of the Elixir should be taken on sugar twice daily. The same as the purified oil of turpentine.

I have had two dozen capsules of turpentine hydrate each containing three grains, put in my mouth (re-ports H. K.) and took one capsule after dinner the first night, and thereafter one capsule after food three times a day. In only two days I got great relief from my cough which had been bothering me a lot especially in the night. After ten days I seem almost free of my cough.

Best way to take it for cough is in capsules containing two or three grains, depending on your size and the size of your cough. This reminds me of one of my first patients—a grocery clerk with an "elephant" cough. I examined his chest many times, found no explanation for his cough. One morning he came with a new symptom—double queer noise in ear and some

Navy Officer Visits Wrens

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRIDGE

Leutenant Jessie Turrance, of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service arrived in Edmonton Monday night from the west coast, to discuss rehabilitation of Edmonton Wrens with naval officers here. A member of the staff of the Directorate of Demobilization at Naval Service Headquarters, in Ottawa, Lt. Turrance has been visiting Wrens at naval establishments across Canada during the past month and is now returning to Ottawa via Saskatoon, Winnipeg and Toronto.

Feeling that it is most important to get women in uniform making plans now for their post-war world, she speaks to Wrens in their social establishment, telling them what legislation has been prepared by the government to help them after discharge and rehabilitation. She outlines the grants and benefits which will be received and explains what vocational training or university courses may be applied for by servicemen.

After speaking to the girls in a group, she gives them an opportunity to interview her privately, and then she allows them to ask questions. The Wrens turn to her with many questions, especially about the possibility of rehabilitation while in the navy. Officer Turrance is taking back to Ottawa with her a list of suggestions from the girls, and will be reporting to her director, Lieutenant-Commander John H. McNair, R.C.N.V.

Accompanied by Sub-Lieutenant Florence MacKay, the director of Naval Information at Ottawa, Lt. Turrance has been visiting Wrens at naval establishments on the east coast. A member of the original class of Canadian Women's Army Corps, she is a Toronto girl, and had been in the Halifax and Cornwallis Nova Scotia, before taking up her present appointment at Ottawa in December, 1943.

MARRIED WOMEN At HMCS "Nonsum" she expects to find the usual number of married Wrens who wish to return home immediately after they leave. She expects to find many girls who go on to university training, several interested in vocational training, and many who wish to continue their education.

Leutenant Turrance is not encouraged by the Wrens to feel that the war is nearly over. She feels that the war is far from over, and she feels that the girls who are in the navy are doing a great job, and she feels that the girls who are in the navy are doing a great job, and she feels that the girls who are in the navy are doing a great job.

One Man's Persuasion Nets 56 Frightened Germans and a Sulky Group of Snipers Awaits a Trip to Prison Camp

Speaking in fluent German, Sgt. Olin Dows of the U.S. army shown with his back to the camera, called to a hidden group of Germans to come out and surrender. The sergeant thought that there were six or seven in the group. No less than 56 Germans popped out, however, as shown in this on-the-spot picture.

These German soldiers, mostly snipers, were captured at Tro yes as the U.S. Third Army raced toward the German border. Most of them were wounded before capture and already have been given first aid. They were awaiting transportation to a prisoner-of-war camp as their picture was taken.

Canadian Fighting Men in Action Against Gothic Line in Italy

These pictures were taken on the Italian front as Allied armies launched their attack against the German-built Gothic Line guarding northern Italy. After weeks of preparation during which Canadian infantry was rested up, re-outfitted and moved secretly to new sectors the assault was opened and here are Canadians as they move forward against stiff Hun resistance in what may be the last big campaign in the Italian theatre. At left two Maritimers, Pte. P. Saulnier of Nimco, N.B., and Pte. L. L. Little of Bartlett's Mills, N.B., stand guard in a slit trench while their company moves up. A short lull in the fighting gave Cpl. L. Charette of Edmundston, N.B., (centre) this opportunity to grab a little sleep in the bottom of his slit trench and at right L-Cpl. J. A. Weston, Fairfield, N.B., mans a Bren machine gun and lays down a cone of fire in a foxhole on the banks of the River Foglia. This is the kind of fighting that Canadians have mastered in Italy—short jumps from slit trench to slit trench while armored units crush enemy strong points to permit advance of the infantry.
